

Author: Benjámín Dávid

E-mail: d.ben0269@gmail.com

Educational institute, faculty, study: University of Szeged, Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences, Sociology

The title of the study: Loss and demography – World War I in Gyoma and Endrőd

Supervisor: Gábor Ferenc Kiss PhD (SZTE JGYPK)

Abstract

When researching the First World War we can find unprocessed issues. Therefore, I have decided to examine the 20th century history of my home town, Gyomaendrőd in detail. For my research I used documents found in the Békés County Archives of Békés Branch Archives, and National Archives of the Hungarian National Archives. It can be said Gyoma and Endrőd villages that besides military losses, World War I was a serious backdrop for the examined society. The period of war it can be stated that the number of births and marriages has drastically decreased, while the number of deaths has increased significantly. At the end of the war, a woman had a surplus in there was a female majority in the population. The 18-50 age group of men was most affected by war losses.